Terms and Conditions:

Guys and Dollies LLC insures all items listed on the invoice, collected, and released to our service for their value not exceeding $100 US dollars per box or container (including all contents) or $100 US dollars if item is stored alone (as in the case of furniture, separately packed electronics, etc.) unless the customer declares all items worth more than $100 US when the items are picked up. For declared items worth over $100 US, Guys and Dollies LLC insures items released to our service for a maximum of $400 per box or unboxed individual item. The maximum total coverage for all items held by Guys and Dollies LLC is $1000 US for each individual customer. For added assurance Guys and Dollies LLC recommends and requests that the Customer add the contents stored to their (or their parent or guardian's) homeowners or renters insurance policy. This may also ensure coverage in the case of damage or loss due to earthquake, tornado, flood, war, natural disasters, fire, arson, acts of terror, acts of God, fire suppressants and/or water damage due to fire containment systems.

Guys and Dollies LLC will accept responsibility for damages, not exceeding the above stated maximums, resulting from transportation and storage except in the following cases:

Cash, jewelry, coins or collectables

Perishable items at risk of deterioration while in storage (for example, food and organic materials), including damage to other items resulting from storing these perishable items

Items of sentimental, intangible value and/or indefinable value

Damaged or broken items without clear indication and evidence of physical damage to the box or container it was stored and/or moved in.

Any illegal substance or paraphernalia used in conjunction, guns, knives, and all other weapons

Loss of data stored on any medium (hard drives, CDs, thumb drives) including purchased data such as music and software.

Extremely fragile items (for example, mirrors, glass)

Improperly packed items (items not adhering to our packing tips, guidelines and regulations)

Electronic equipment not packed in its original packaging when stored inside of a box or container. Containers with packaged electronics (for example, monitors, computers, stereos, televisions and all other electronic equipment) must be properly labeled and made obvious of its contents.

Unpacked Items (for example, furniture that is not wrapped and protected)

Minor damage resulted from normal moving and handling (example: nicks, scratches, cuts, tape residue, and scrapes) to furniture and storage containers including but not limited to plastic bins and luggage.

Damage to assembled furniture and particle board based furniture

Damage due to earthquake, tornado, flood, war, natural disasters, fire, arson, acts of terror, acts of God, fire suppressants and/or water damage due to fire containment systems.

Guys and Dollies LLC is only responsible for items picked up and listed on each individual's invoice at the time of pickup. Customers having friends, roommates, or other contacts sign for their items at the time of pick up must know exactly what items are to be picked up. In these instances, Guys and Dollies is not responsible for any loss of forgotten or omitted items. We encourage all customers to provide a detailed list to these contacts, and to our office, of exactly what Guys and Dollies will be picking up to ensure no inclusions or omissions occur. If Guys and Dollies is late or does not come to your pickup appointment, it is you and/or your contact's responsibility to inform our office. Guy and Dollies is not responsible for the negligence or failure of you or your contact to call our office if your appointment was missed. Guys and Dollies does not take responsibility for items that are not picked up and not in our possession.

The customer acknowledges that they are liable for any damage their storage contents may inflict on the property of others. Examples include but are not limited to ruptured containers of liquids, extreme odors, and decomposition of perishable items.

Any individual items or boxes not declared worth more than $100 will be insured for up to, but not exceeding $100 dollars per container (including all of its contents) or $100 dollars if item is stored alone (as in the case of furniture, separately packed electronics, furniture, etc.) For items being shipped, please refer to the shipping carrier's website for coverage details. All domestic shipments are provided by Fedex and insured for $100 per package unless extra insurance is purchased by the customer from Fedex.

The Customer agrees to add contents in storage and custody of Guys and Dollies LLC to their homeowners and/or renters insurance policy of their parent or guardian if available. The Customer agrees to first claim any loss against any insurance carried by the Customer or the Customer's parent or guardian if available. The Customer will make claims against Guys and Dollies LLC only after exhausting all other potential forms of coverage and providing proof of attempt to gain said coverage.

Unless Guys and Dollies is informed of a customer's intention for longer term storage, each item must be delivered, or picked up within 30 days of the final delivery of the season. If it is not, a fee will be charged equal to the cost of summer storage of the item. If the item is not claimed within 60 days of the final delivery of the season, Guys and Dollies LLC will receive ownership of said item(s).
